

City Order Closes Request To Study 'Backlog' Of Drainage

It was learned last week that a study of the Bay Hi, Louisiana City Council has ordered the City Engineer to close the request for a study of the drainage backlog in the city.

The request was made by a group of residents who live in the area of the city known as the "backlog" area. They claim that the drainage system in this area is inadequate and that it causes flooding during heavy rains.

The City Engineer, however, has decided that a study is not necessary at this time. He stated that the drainage system in the city is generally adequate and that any flooding is caused by heavy rains rather than by a backlog of drainage.

The residents are disappointed by the City Engineer's decision and are planning to continue their efforts to get the drainage system improved.
